Global Food Crisis

The world faces a (1) _____ hunger crisis of unprecedented proportions. In just two years, the number of people facing, or at (2) _____ of, acute food insecurity (3) _____ from 135 million in 53 countries pre-pandemic, to 345 million in 79 countries in 2023. Fueled by conflict, climate shocks and COVID-19, the crisis is escalating as the war in Ukraine (4) _____ the costs of food, fuel and fertilizers. Millions of people are struggling to put food on the table and are being driven closer to starvation in a storm of staggering proportions. We are at a critical (5) _____. We need to rise to the challenge of meeting people's immediate food needs, while at the same time supporting programs that build long-term resilience. The alternative is hunger on a (6) _____ scale. WFP is prioritizing emergency action to prevent millions dying of hunger and help build and stabilize national food systems and related supply chains. We aim to support a record 171.5 million people in 2023, a significant increase on 128 million in 2021. We are (7) _____ our supplier base, promoting local food (8) _____ and negotiating for humanitarian access and export waivers. Our operational needs are now at an all-time high of US$25.1 billion, with forecasted contributions of US$10 billion (or 40 percent). WFP has a plan for 2023 – the most (9) _____ in its history – but needs renewed and larger commitments to help deliver millions of people from disaster. We face a triple jeopardy: operational costs increase, the number of acutely hungry people rises to (10) _____ levels and donors are squeezed by multiple demands. Without additional resources, WFP will be forced to continue drastic prioritization in many of the countries where we operate, including among (11) _____ crises.

Measuring Global Poverty in an Unequal World

There is no single (1) _____ of poverty. Our understanding of the extent of poverty and how it is changing (2) _____ on which definition we have in mind. In particular, richer and poorer countries set very different (3) _____ lines in order to measure poverty in a way that is informative and (4) _____ to the level of incomes of their citizens. For instance, while in the United States a person is counted as being in poverty if they live on less than (5) _____ $24.55 per day, in Ethiopia the poverty line is set more than 10 times (6) _____ – at $2.04 per day. You can read more about how these comparable national poverty lines are (7) _____ in this footnote. To measure poverty globally, however, we need to apply a poverty line that is (8) _____ across countries. This is the goal of the International Poverty Line of $2.15 per day – shown in red in the chart – which is set by the World Bank and used by the UN to (9) _____ extreme poverty around the world. We see that, in (10) _____ terms, this is an extremely low threshold indeed – set to reflect the poverty lines adopted nationally in the world’s poorest countries. It marks an (11) _____ low standard of living – a level of income much lower than just the cost of a healthy diet.
